ABSTRACT

Produced by the Rural and Distance Education (RADE) database of the Queensland (Australia) Department of Education, this bibliography is designed to support research studies and to aid teachers, administrators, support personnel, and policy makers. The 1,965 citations, which include both monographs and journal articles (some of which are already in the ERIC database), are not annotated but do include index terms. An explanation of initialisms used and a subject index are appended. The entries are almost all in English and deal chiefly with Australia and the United States. All were published between 1925 and 1982. (JMM)

FOREWORD

Since 1978, the Research Branch of the Department of Education has been investigating several aspects of the distance teaching facilities in Queensland. In association with these studies extensive literature resources in the areas of rural and distance education have been acquired through the Department of Education library. These resources have been collected from a number of sources including publishers, conferences, computerised databases, correspondence institutions and through the generosity of many authors.

In order to better organise these resources and to facilitate access, Research Branch has developed a computerised database of bibliographic resources in rural and distance education, known as the RADE (Rural and Distance Education) database. This bibliography is a product of this database.

The database was initially developed to facilitate research into the State distance education system and was oriented towards supporting research studies. The database has now been diversified to include information on general curriculum, planning, administrative and policy issues related to rural and distance education, particularly in Queensland. It is anticipated that this diversification will enable the database to be more responsive to the needs of many people concerned with issues in this area, particularly teachers, administrators, support personnel and policy makers.

The database is continually expanding. This necessitates the occasional publication of new entries and a revision of bibliographies from time to time. Schools and other users will be notified of such revisions.

USING THIS BIBLIOGRAPHY

Almost all items listed in this bibliography are held in the Queensland Department of Education library, or in another Australian library, and should be readily accessible to users. Many of the publishing houses can be directly contacted for the purchasing of items. All requests for ERIC reproductions can be sent to the National Library of Australia, Canberra.

This bibliography has been created using a computerised database creation system. While such a system has numerous advantages, some limitations are also imposed upon the user. These limitations, combined with the limits of the computer terminal used to input citations, produced a number of obvious consistent formating problems. The most notable of these are:

(a) all citations are typed in upper case

(b) a number of punctuation errors

To assist the reader, the standard format of citations is given below.

It should be noted that citation numbers are printed in the top right corner of each page. This will facilitate location of entries when using the index. Some citations are marked by the notation N.N. This denotes that the item is NOT NUMBERED and should be ignored. Such items are usually duplicate entries and have been retained as it was not cost effective to remove them from the computer file at the time of compilation.

The numbering system refers to individual citations, not to individual authors.
